ON A SUNNY DAY, IT'S HOTTER THAN YOU REALIZE.

This is how quickly the temperature inside a vehicle rises on a 70° Fahrenheit day, based on research by Jan Null, Department of Earth and Climate Sciences, San Francisco State University:

After 10 minutes = 89°F After 20 minutes = 99°F
After 30 minutes = 104°F After 60 minutes = 113°F
After 2 hours = 120°F

Null also found that keeping the windows open slightly had little effect and that car interiors with darker colors heat up faster.

PREVENTATIVE TIPS

- Always lock the car doors and trunk preventing a child from entering a car without your knowledge.
- Be extra alert if your routine changes. That's when the risk of unintentionally leaving your child in your car increases.
- Put something of your child's, like a toy on the front seat. Even if you can't see your child in the backseat (especially if the child is in a rear-facing car seat), the toy should trigger a reminder that a child's there.
- Leave an item you'll need at your next destination in the backseat, such as your cell phone, purse or briefcase.
- Place your child's car seat in the middle of the backseat rather than behind the driver. That way, it's easier to see the child in your rearview mirror.
- Discuss the topic of hot-car deaths with every person who drives your child anywhere. This includes partners, grandparents, babysitters and friends.
- Always "look before your leave." Get in the habit of checking the backseat each time.
